The Runaway Train (Sweden)

(February 21, 2004)

Vision

I saw a runaway train. In the train there were people urgently discussing as to who would take charge of the train without realizing that no one could actually take control of the train. Suddenly, from outside the train there came a beam of light shooting like an arrow--a divine intervention of God speaking prophetically the solution to the problem--the only hope.

Interpretation of Vision

II Chron. 20 has an example on how God's people were placed in an impossible situation. When they began to seek God's face through fasting, prayer, and sanctification, reminding God of His Covenant and helplessly surrendering to His Word, then God spoke prophetically, and that prophetic Word, when acted upon, became the key to their deliverance.

Christianity in Sweden is facing an impossible situation just like the runaway train. But when God's people turn to Him, He will send a word from outside that when acted upon will bring deliverance and a move of His Spirit.
